ADAPTIVE CLOTHING FOR DISABLED OR DEPENDENT PERSONS

Adaptive clothing/apparel

Within the aging society context, the dressing ability is the first one to be lost. The adaptive clothing can play an important role in simplifying the lives of the elderly with problems related to the loss of autonomy and their caregivers, designing clothes targeted to their needs, simply wearable, enhancing and encouraging the individual dignity.

Vesta clothing brand is designed to be functional regarding dressing and undressing issues related to bedridden care recipient or patients suffering from diseases such as stroke, Parkinson, Senile Dementia, Alzheimer... but also responds to the needs of people with temporary loss of autonomy, caused by, for example, a fall, a surgery or individuals simply looking for maximum comfort and easy-wear features.

Moved by the above listed purposes, the "Linea Vesta" applies particular techniques of design, lacing, maintenance and beyond this, chooses easy washable and breathable fabrics made to ensure elasticity and full adaptability. . .

The apparel is the result of the cooperation of a differentiated teamwork with health, social, fashion styling competences and the caregivers with their direct experiences and knowledge.

VESTA is the name of the project carried out by knitwear artisans from Carpi (Emilia Romagna Region in Italy) with the support of Anziani e non solo, who collected the proposals launched during various editions of the Caregiver Day.

A close collaboration with experts in social innovation, providing their expertise and knowledge to respond to some of the problems faced by disabled persons carrying out the activities of daily living, including basic tasks such as dressing.
